Due to local and international legislation and regulatory requirements, pressure is increasing on healthcare service providers like you to provide accessible communications to Person's with Disabilities (PWD) and meet the varying needs of this growing population. However, meeting such accessibility requirements can be overwhelming for many Healthcare Service Organizations as current day to day operational and revenue demands increase.

Our experts will help you increase readability and offer alternative document formats so you can improve your overall communication strategy and patient experience, reduce time consuming calls and meet your regulatory obligations.

Enhance Your Digital Communication Experience

Healthcare providers and entities will soon see an uptick in disability rates as the baby boomer population ages. By simply creating accessible PDF and HTML transactional documents, the healthcare community as a whole can quickly offer an enhanced digital experiences across their patients continuum of care so documents can be consumed and interpreted reliably by a wide variety of user agents including assistive technologies.

Compliance

Available as standalone documents, delivered via our web portal or via a variety of other methods, Doxim Accessible Documents meets WCAG 2.1 standards to assist you in meeting your ADA, AODA and Section 508 compliance requirements.

Expand Your Community Outreach By Tapping Into An Under-Served Market

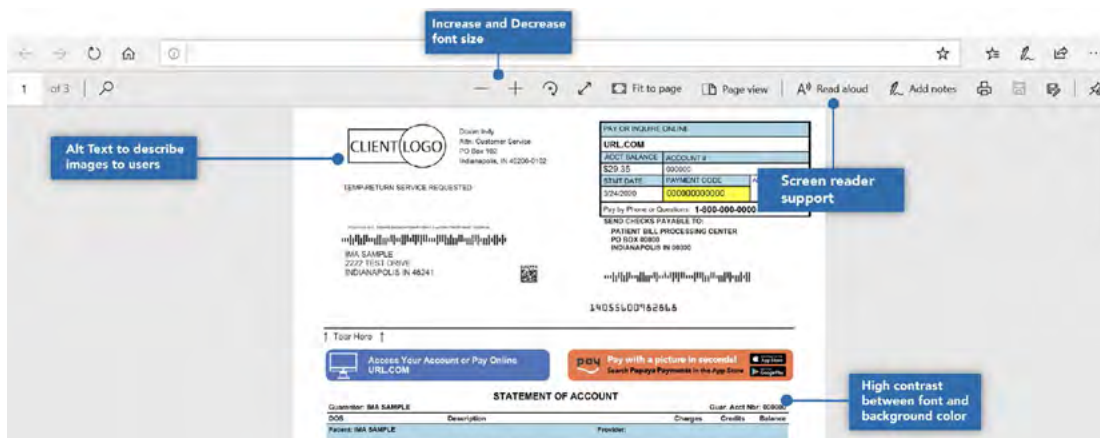

Persons with Disabilities (PWD) are the largest minority group in North America. According to the CDC, there are approximately 63 million Persons with Disabilities living in North America today with the 65 years and older age demographic representing a staggering 74.2% of this number. Additionally, visual impairments complicate day to day life for many older adults creating unwanted burden and stress.

Aging health care consumers will increase the demand for physicians' services. In the United States, people over the age of 65 visit their doctor an average of eight times per year compared to the general population's average of five visits per year. Physicians should prepare for an increasing number of older patients by developing a greater understanding of this population and how to enhance communications with them.

Working with Doxim and technology providers who are well versed in these regulatory guidelines, you can ensure your Healthcare Organization is fully compliant. Document accessibility is an essential part of the broader accessibility picture because your entire patient population rely on communications that are easily interpreted regardless of device or method of delivery.
